seminar paper from the year 2008 in the subject politics topic development politics grade merit university of manchester institute for development policy and management course poverty and livelihoods analysis policy and action language english abstract poverty reduction stands in the centre of the current development agenda of governments and aid agencies and is seen as an overarching aim of development intervention there is a danger that those suffering the severest forms of poverty will not be reached by the recent poverty agenda it gets increasingly obvious that even in countries that perform well in terms of poverty reduction there remains significant numbers of people in deprivation which is a sign that certain forms of poverty are not addressed by the current development agenda green and hulme 2005 the concept chronic poverty is an attempt to understand and address those forms of poverty chronically poor are defined as people who remain poor for much of their life course who may pass on their poverty to their children and who may die of easily preventable deaths because of the poverty they experience cprc 2004 3 conservative estimates speak of 300 to 420 million chronically poor worldwide ibid the following three sections attempt to answer the question of whether the concept of chronic poverty adds value to current poverty analysis and development policy section 2 introduces the concept chronic poverty and section 3 gives an overview about current poverty analysis and its critiques with a focus on current approaches and understandings of poverty which influence the current poverty reduction agenda section 4 presents the analysis of whether the concept adds value to poverty analysis and the implications this may have for pro poor policy making it will be argued that the concept of chronic poverty has advantages on the conceptual level of poverty analysis and on the practical level of development policy and intervention those levels are highly interdependent which measures are taken to fight poverty is dependant on how it is analysed and defined by academics donors societies and national decision makers therefore section four is divided into two parts the first part will discuss the influences for conceptualising poverty and the second part will concentrate on practical implications for development policy and intervention global development actors such as the world bank and the international monetary fund claim that the shift to the poverty reduction strategy framework and emphasis on local participation address the social cost of earlier adjustment programs and help put aid receiving countries back in control of their own development agenda drawing on the case of ghana lord mawuko yevugah argues that this shift and the emphasis on partnerships between donors and poor countries local participation and country ownership simultaneously represents a substantive departure from earlier versions of neo liberalism and an attempt by global development actors and local governing and social elites to justify and legitimize the neo liberal policy paradigm this book shows how the new architecture of aid has important implications in three distinct but related ways the discursive construction and production of post colonial societies the changing focus of western aid and development policy interventions and the reproduction of the politics of inclusive exclusion the author provides detailed and original research on the new development paradigm and develops a critical theoretical approach to re think conventional analyses of the new discourses on aid whilst offering a fresh alternative interpretation of changes in international aid relations heralded as a success that mobilized support for development the millennium development goals mdgs ushered in an era of setting development agendas by setting global goals this book critically evaluates the mdg experience from the capabilities and human rights perspectives and questions the use of quantitative targets as an instrument of global governance it provides an account of their origins trajectory and influence in shaping the policy agenda and ideas about international development during the first 15 years of the 21st century the chapters explore whether the goals are adequate as benchmarks for the transformative vision of the millennium declaration how the goals came to be formulated the way they were drawing on interviews with key actors who were involved in the process how the goals exercised influence through framing to shape policy agendas on the part of both developing countries and the international community the political economy that drove the formulation of the goals and their consequences on the agendas of the south and the north the effects of quantification and indicators on ideas and action and the lessons to be drawn for using numeric goals to promote global priorities representing a significant body of work on the mdgs in its multiple dimensions compiled here for the first time as a single collection that tells the whole definitive story this book provides a comprehensive resource it will be of great interest to students researchers and policymakers in the fields of development human rights international political economy and governance by numeric indicators
